

Food Fraud Services

Specializing in FDA Regulatory Matters

EAS Consulting Group

A Certified Group Company

The challenge of detecting Food Fraud and the potential economic loss to food manufacturers, importers, retailers and consumers has never been greater. With long supply chains stretching around the world, the negative impacts of Food Fraud are dominant concerns for governments, the food industry and consumers. Food fraud, the act of intentional adulteration for economic gain, is damaging to everyone.

EAS Consulting Group helps clients develop systems for the prevention of food fraud. Through on-site and remote assessments of manufacturing operations, supply chain documentation, and development of block-chain systems, our expert consultants offer dedicated and actionable solutions.

Additionally, our synergies with Certified Laboratories and FSNS enable us to offer analytical testing in support of Food Fraud identification and prevention. Using novel applications such as next-generation sequencing and Spectroscopic and Chromatographic methods, our holistic approach helps you to identify nefarious suppliers and to protect your brand.
